

EXHIBIT 5

DECLARATION

I declare under the penalty for perjury under the laws of the United States of America that the following is true and correct to the best of my knowledge, information, and belief (28 USC 1746):

1. My name is Rich Sutton. I am the Chief Executive Officer of Xanadu Corp., a Colorado corporation, and successor in interest to a division of Trust Services S.A., a Costa Rica corporation.

Objections

2. By submitting this Declaration, Xanadu Corp. does not waive its objections to the inappropriate singling out of our enterprise with respect to its claim and submissions.
3. Specifically, we understand that we are being treated in a disparate manner than other claimants and subjected to a higher standard of review.
4. That is, we did not opt out of the settlement with the understanding that all class members would be treated equally and that the settlement agreement, terms, deadlines, and administration would apply equally to all claimants.
5. If it was disclosed during the proceedings that, after our claim was approved, Class Counsel could arbitrarily decide to overturn the approval and impose burdens not applied equally as to all claimants, we would have opted out of the settlement and filed a parallel proceeding.
6. Specifically, the Claims Administrator, Rust Consulting, Inc., approved our claim.
7. We believe that Class Counsel, which is supposed to represent the interest of the class members, engaged in objectionable conduct by forcing a post-approval audit to favor its own request for attorney fees.
8. We believe that Class Counsel maintains a clear conflict of interest by violating the terms and conditions of the settlement and the Order approving the same, attempting to convert our funds to a portion of its attorney fee request, and advocating against the terms and conditions of its own settlement agreement and procedures and the determination made by the claims administrator that it chose to make sure that all class members were treated equally and subject to the same procedures.

9. If our claim is subject to post-approval audit because we utilized a virtual office, we believe that Rust Consulting should conduct post-approval audits with respect to all claimants that submitted claims using a mailing address instead of a physical address, something not even asked on the original claim forms.
10. If we are subject to a criteria that other claimants were not, notwithstanding their use of estimations or other criteria, then Rust Consulting should seek to engage in a post-approval audit of those claimants on an equal basis.
11. Specifically, it is clear that our claim is being subjected to a different, more onerous standard, than claims submitted by similarly situated companies.
12. We further object to the handling by Rust Consulting, at the direction of Class Counsel, to simply convert payments that were misdelivered or not cashed to claimants without any attempt to notify them. In this case, Rust Consulting knew how to reach us, but made zero effort to do so when the check was returned the second time. This clearly breaches the fiduciary duty to claimants, especially when Rust Consulting knew there was a significant amount of time (several years) between the claims time and the time payment was made.
13. By responding to the inappropriate and objectionable post-approval audit, we reserve our right and ability to initiate litigation outside of these proceedings.

Corporate structure

14. Trust Services S.A. was an entity in Costa Rica formed on or around November 29, 2001.
15. During 2013, the environment for consulting businesses domiciled primarily in Costa Rica stalled with respect to conducting international business.
16. Therefore, on February 24, 2013, Trust Services S.A. registered a Statement of Foreign Entity Authority pursuant to § 7-90-803 of the Colorado Revised Statutes (C.R.S.) entitling it to conduct business in the United States. The document was filed by Rodrigo Calderon, a Costa Rican national vested with proper authority for the purpose.
17. With this document, to comply with Colorado law, the entity name was changed to Trust Services Inc.

18. Four days later, to enable Trust Services' business operations to be converted into various domestic United States enterprises, it caused the creation of several entities including Xanadu Corp., along with ten other corporations.
19. All of the rights, liabilities, receivables, and assets of Trust Services' business, as described below, was transferred to Xanadu Corp., an entity 100% owned by Trust Services.
20. All of the rights, liabilities, receivables, and assets of Trust Services' other business activities, not relevant to the business described below, were transferred to one of nine entities formed on the same day.
21. Collectively we refer to the present and past operations as Xanadu or Xanadu Corp.

Nature of the business

22. Xanadu Corp.'s business, as relevant to the present case, involved locating temporary personnel on a contract basis including designers, marketing specialists, business presenters, interpreters, models, business escorts, and security personnel usually for events, trade shows, video creation, acting, and other types of one-time contracts. At all times material, we adhered to the standards of the The Code of Conduct for the Protection of Children from Sexual Exploitation in Travel and Tourism and other protocols related to prevention of trafficking and exploitation of persons.
23. As to the specific question as to the number of "employees" it had during the material times, the enterprise maintained between 4 and 62 employees depending on which year, primarily in Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Ecuador, Dominican Republic and Colombia. These employees did not travel routinely. The employees conducted marketing, telemarketing, online marketing, travel coordination, supervision of events, making reports, etc. The travel purchased or paid for by Xanadu Corp. involved independent contractors, usually retained for a specific one or multi-time purpose, not its employees.

Current operations

24. Currently, the Company no longer engages in this type of business activity. Due to a change in the environment, the availability of companies to find their own contractors using the internet, and liability, the business model from 2000 to 2015 is no longer feasible.
25. Therefore, Xanadu Corp.'s business activities have winded down to less than 1% of its activities during the first decade from 2000.

Domain Name Phreakmail.com

26. We understand that Class Counsel is attempting to impugn our use of our domain name phreakmail.com in connection with the filing of our claim.
27. Contrary to the incorrect insinuation about the domain name, our domain name demonstrates our long term business.
28. Specifically, any person can register a domain name. For example, we could register the domain name IBM.xyz, but have no association with IBM. To do so would cost under $10. Yet, Class Counsel implied that a domain name or the contents of a domain name somehow legitimizes or delegitimizes a business.
29. A review of the domain history of phreakmail.com demonstrates several things. First, it shows the registration occurred in 2004, over 18 years ago. From www.whois.ws, one can see the following: (1) The domain registration occurred during 2004; (2) the domain name is registered through Epik.com; and (3) the name servers are through www.dandydns.com, our dns provider.

30. Reviewing our domain www.xanaducorp.net, which should impress Class Counsel under their mistaken belief system as to what a claimant should use to communicate, one can see on www.whois.ws that: (1) The domain was registered on February 28, 2013, the same day we formed the Colorado corporation that is the successor to the Trust Services S.A business; (2) The domain was registered through Epik.com; and (3) The DNS uses the name servers www.dandydns.com, the same provider as the phreakmail.com domain.

31. We used the phreakmail.com domain instead of the xanaducorp.net domain because we simply did not consider a need to modify practices to impress as to what we believed was a claim worth a couple thousand dollars.
32. Our goal was to assure that we received communications in a timely manner and the phreakmail email enabled us to receive notifications (not that Rust Consulting bothered to use it to notify us that a problem occurred).

Why our mail was not delivered.

33. Xanadu Corp. rents, and has rented, a virtual office in Colorado since its formation date in 2013 in Golden, Colorado, at 14143 Denver Parkway. In addition, Xanadu Corp. since 2013, has its name listed in the building directory in the lobby. However, mail to our Colorado location takes up to one month to be delivered to Costa Rica. Therefore, we do not ordinarily use this location.

34. Therefore, for legal and official communications, the company desired to have easy access to mail notifications, especially since its control persons are in Central and South America.

35. To accomplish this task, in 2013, we subscribed to a virtual mailbox service through a company known as Mail Box Forwarding and obtained our Los Angeles mailing address.

36. Mail Box Forwarding provided prompt notification of received mail.

37. Unbeknownst to us, Mail Box Forwarding did not actually operate the Los Angeles address.

38. About two years ago, Mail Box Forwarding abruptly, and without advance notice, ended their relationship with the Los Angeles mailbox provider.

39. Because we desired to maintain the address, we contacted the actual owners of the Los Angeles mail location and established a relationship with them and they agreed to allow us to use the exact same address.

40. We have received, and are receiving, other mail communications to the address.

41. We are not aware of why the mail was returned on both occasions.

42. If we were notified that the mail was returned a second time, we would have inquired promptly.

43. We understand that the address we listed on our claim remains valid.

44. When we did not receive the payment, we contacted a third party agency and arranged for them to accept delivery of the item.

Registration with the California Secretary of State

45. We never registered with the California Secretary of State because we do not conduct business in California. On the contrary, our maintenance of a mail facility does not constitute the minimum contacts necessary to require registration.

46. We never represented Xanadu to be a California corporation or Enterprise.

47. The claims form requested only our mailing address.

48. If Rust Consulting and Class Counsel believed the registration of the business and actual physical location constituted a relevant question, then it should have been a question on the claim form or asked of all claimants.

Our Telephone Number

49. Class counsel insinuated that our telephone number consisted of a "landline" phone number in Utah.

50. This is not correct.

51. The number still exists and is in service, has been used by us since 2013, but it is not a landline. It is a business voice over internet protocol line. These types of lines are used in the course of business operations.

Our request for a check in the Company Name only

52. In an email to the claims administrator, we requested that the check be made to the Company only.

53. The reason for this is obvious. The claim does not belong to an individual. It belongs to a company.

54. Paying a check jointly to a company and an individual could create tax complications for the individual who received no benefit of the payment. In addition, banks ordinarily do not allow joint accounts between an individual and a corporation, requiring the company to obtain an endorsement of an individual who has no right to receive the proceeds.

55. Therefore, our request constituted good business practices and was meant to avoid both problems with accounting and with our bank.

More recent airline ticket purchases

56. In alignment with normal business practices and record retention, we did not retain airline ticket copies, reservation numbers, or reservation confirmations for tickets from 15 to 20 years ago.

57. However we herein show, as demonstrated by the attached, in July 2015, in connection with a potential dispute in an unrelated matter, retained ticket data from a single airline for travel in July and August 2015.

58. The data is provided to show a short period more recent sampling of the vast amount of travel our agents participated in and to respond to the incorrect presumption by class counsel that 1,200 tickets over a multi-year span is somehow a large number.
59. While this batch of tickets is not limited to Asia flights, during 2015 our business declined over 85% from 2000 through 2007, yet we managed over 70 international flights with over 120 passengers in connection with our placement consulting during a two month period from a single airline. Of course, we sent the agents on multiple airlines and usually booked directly with the airlines in question. Only American Airlines data is provided as that is the only carrier that we retained in connection with the dispute.
60. If anything, our claim is grossly underestimated, not overestimated, as even some of these tickets would have and the similar tickets from 2010 through 2015 would have been included in the settlement period.
61. However, we believed that the entire claim was valued at a few thousand dollars at the most and were not going to perform an audit of tickets to increase our claim.
62. Therefore, we limited our claim to Japan-based flights that we had noted on a spreadsheet because of projects that occurred during the early 2000s.

Ticket purchases made during the class period

63. We incorporate our original claim and declaration provided in response to the audit by reference as if fully set forth again. We reaffirm that the information contained therein contains numbers smaller than the actual amount of tickets purchased or paid for by Xanadu during the settlement period.
64. Per normal business and record retention procedures, we do not currently have airline ticket copies, reservation numbers, or reservation confirmations for tickets from 15 to 20 years ago.
65. Based on reviews of company activity records including accounting records, contractor logs and notes, and client records that were available at the time the claim data was entered, it was fairly evident that the Company's qualifying transpacific air travel exceeds the actual number of flights claimed. The settlement period covered transpacific flights purchased between January 1, 2000 and December 1, 2016. Xanadu only claimed flights taken between the years 2002 and 2008. For example, if one reviewed our outstanding tickets from the printouts dated July 11 and July 12, 2015, it is evidence that we omitted tickets from this period.

66. Flights prior to 2002 were not claimed because they were non-existent, at least for the most part. The company was formed towards the end of 2001 and likely did not have qualifying flights prior to 2002, or if it did there would have been a very limited number thereof.
67. However, based on the clearly evident business activity taking place in those years, qualifying flights were almost certainly purchased between the years 2009 and 2016.
68. Because the logs and notes do not provide sufficient data to ascertain exactly how many flights were taken, and with which airlines in which years, no qualifying flights were claimed during the 2009 through 2016 period.
69. However, if we were to include 2009 to 2016 flights, it is believed that the number of tickets would increase dramatically. As shown by our sampling from late July to August 2015, from a single airline, it is clear that hundreds of additional flights could have been added per year.
70. The logs and notes for 2002 through 2008 that were available at the time that the claim was entered did contain sufficient data to provide the attached spreadsheet containing the qualifying flight data for those years, which are reflective of the qualifying flights purchased and actually claimed.
71. We note at the time that we lodged our claim, our expected recovery was under $3,000. We did not have any information that certain types of tickets would pay several hundred dollars per ticket in refunds, exceeding by a large multiplier the actual cost of the fuel surcharge. Nevertheless, we expect to be treated equally and paid pursuant to the scheduled distribution on our approved claim.
72. Our claims are based on direct purchases (from the airline itself) with tickets we paid for with respect to our contract operations in Japan.
